CURIOSITY

We commonly believe that Chardonnay originated in France, in the wine region of Burgundy.

In fact, the first to bring white wine to France were the crusaders who brought with them grape seeds and wine, one of the divine symbols, which was for this reason called "Shaar-adonay", which in Hebrew means "Door of God", the symbol of the Holy City of Jerusalem.

Evident is the sound-alike between the two terms, so here is the true origin of the name "Chardonnay", which actually derived from the Hebrew wine and not from French.
